

Common Symptoms of Colic

- Restlessness manifested by pawing, repeated getting up and lying down and rolling over
- Kicking at the belly
- Looking at the flank
- May adopt a dog-setting posture
- Decreased appetite
- Lying down and getting up carefully
- Appears lifeless, drooping head, depressed
- Weight loss
- Unable to gain weight regardless of change in diet
- Watery diarrhea

The animal may just stand or lie down on its sternum and turn its head to look at its left flank. It may get up, walk around, and then lie down again. They usually refuse to eat and sometimes will go to a water source and play in it with their lips. As the severity of the case increases so does the evidence of pain. They will begin to sweat; breathing becomes more and more labored. The horse will go down and roll from side to side, often kicking and striking as it rolls. It will get up and immediately go down again, until it is almost impossible to keep it on its feet. A.J. Newman, DVM
